Preparation for major traffic switch

The Australian and NSW governments are jointly funding the $675 million Frederickton to Eungai Pacific Highway upgrade. As part of building this project, Pacific Highway traffic will be temporarily diverted onto new access roads and Macleay Valley Way. This diversion will enable the demolition and rebuilding of the existing highway between Barraganyatti and Eungai. We are seeking your consent to carry out some preparation work at night.

Out-of-hour work on Pacific Highway

To prepare for the traffic switch, we propose to build the northern and southern intersections of the Pacific Highway at night.

The first intersection is located about 500 metres north of Stuarts Point Road and the second about 500 metres south of Barraganyatti Hut Road. Each intersection will take about four nights to complete, weather permitting.

Carrying out this work at night reduces the impact to Pacific Highway traffic and improves safety for workers and motorists.

We propose to carry out the work between 22 September and 27 October 2014, weather permitting. This work will involve lighting, sealing the road and creating an alternate traffic flow.

Electronic message signs will be placed along the Pacific Highway (northbound and southbound) and display information regarding the dates and times of the out of hours activities.

You can also visit the website for regular updates at www.rms.nsw.gov.au/pacific.

At any time during the out of hours work, you can contact the community relations team if you have any concerns.
