Nepean River Green Bridge – update

A new fly-through animation of the proposed Nepean River Green Bridge between Penrith and Emu Plains is now available.

The NSW Government is planning to build a new 4.6 metre wide walking and cycling connection between Penrith and Emu Plains. Following the selection of the preferred bridge design, the eastern approach to the bridge has been relocated to be within the Old Log Cabin site, further away from residential properties.

The new bridge would:

- Connect the river with Penrith City Centre and the suburbs of Penrith and Emu Plains
- Create opportunities for people to engage with the river
- Provide an iconic landmark that distinguishes Penrith
- Optimise views of the Nepean River and Victoria Bridge
- Respect the historic setting and place
- Provide a crossing that is flood free and safe to use.

Roads and Maritime is currently finalising the design and preparing a Review of Environmental Factors. These will be on public display for comment later this year.

The superstructure of the bridge is based on a Warren type truss bridge that is as simple as possible and minimises bulk. The truss design retains a similar built form to the nearby railway bridge. The proposed colour for the bridge was influenced by the colours of the surrounding area and ochre tones of the Victoria and railway bridges.

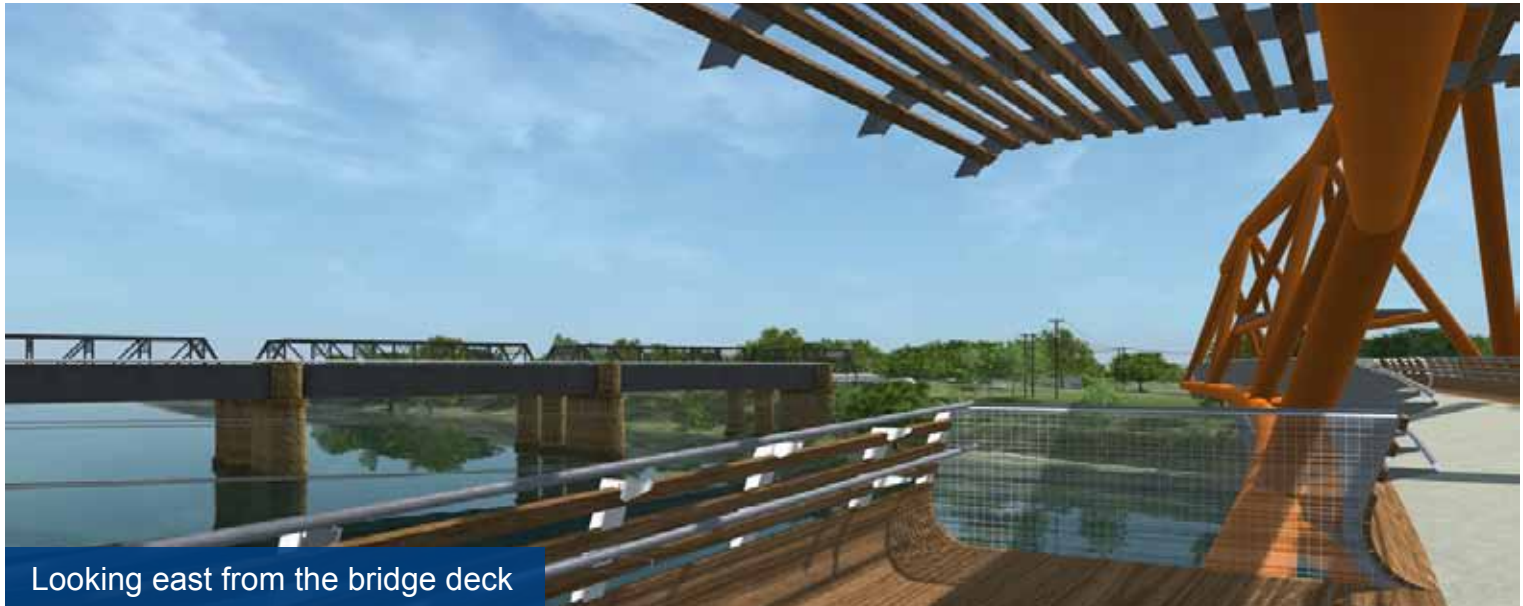

A fly-through animation is available to view from the project website at rms.nsw.gov.au/roadprojects to give you a better idea of how the bridge will look.
