SAFETY WORK ON THE PACIFIC HIGHWAY NEARING COMPLETION

Clarence MP, Chris Gulaptis today announced work at Swan Creek on the Pacific Highway, six kilometres north of Grafton is open to traffic.

“Access to and from the highway and the village of Swan Creek has been improved which is great news for the local community,” Mr Gulaptis said.

“The improvements have provided better sight distances to the north and the building of a separate left turn lane on the highway making the intersection safer for traffic entering or leaving Swan Creek.

“Finishing work including landscaping is scheduled for completion by the end of July, weather permitting.

“The $960,000 project is funded by a program of safety improvement work developed as part of the Federal and NSW governments' $5.14 billion commitment to upgrade the Pacific Highway.

“This is part of the commitment to make the Pacific Highway safer.”

The work was carried out by Roads and Maritime Services and Clarence Valley Council.

RMS would like to thank motorists and the local community for their patience during the changed traffic conditions.
