RIGHT TURN LANES OPEN ON CAMDEN VALLEY WAY AT CASULA

The Hon Charlie Lynn, Duty MLC for Macquarie Fields today announced Roads and Maritime Services (RMS) has completed work to extend the dual right turn lanes by 80 metres from Camden Valley Way (Hume Highway) into Campbelltown Road at Casula.

Mr Lynn said the $600,000 NSW Government funded project was completed on time and on budget.

"RMS started work in August to extend the dual right turn lanes to increase capacity and improve safety for eastbound traffic on the Hume Highway.

"RMS built a new median, resurfaced the road, carried out line marking and relocated signage as part of the work.

"The dual right turn lane extension at Casula is part of the $125 million NSW Government Pinch Point Program which aims to reduce delays, manage congestion and maintain travel times on Sydney’s main roads.

"The Hume Highway is one pinch point corridor which required improved traffic flow to reduce peak hour delays.

RMS thanks motorists and local residents for their patience during the project.
