

Project update – Intersection improvements at the Princes Highway and Heathcote Road, Engadine

The NSW Government is funding a proposal as part of its $300 million Gateway to the South Pinch Point Program which aims to ease congestion and improve journey reliability on Sydney's key southern corridors.

Roads and Maritime Services invited feedback in May and June on a proposal to improve traffic flow and ease congestion at the intersection of the Princes Highway and Heathcote Road, Engadine.

We received feedback from 56 people, with 32 supporting the proposal, 18 not stating a preference and six people who opposed the proposal.

After considering all responses, along with the proposal's aims and design requirements, we have decided to proceed with the proposal with a minor change. This includes:

- reconfiguring line markings on the eastern approach out of Wilson Parade to provide two dedicated right turn lanes on to Princes Highway northbound, with a single through lane on to Heathcote Road westbound, and a left slip lane on to Princes Highway.

We have responded directly to questions or concerns raised and thank everyone for considering the proposal and for their feedback.

What happens next?

We are planning to start construction in early-mid 2018.

The work will include:

- adding a short lane eastbound on Heathcote Road for traffic going straight ahead or turning right
- keeping the existing left turn slip lane from Heathcote Road onto Princes Highway
- keeping the existing left turn slip lane from Princes Highway onto Heathcote Road.

We have included a map to show the location of the work.

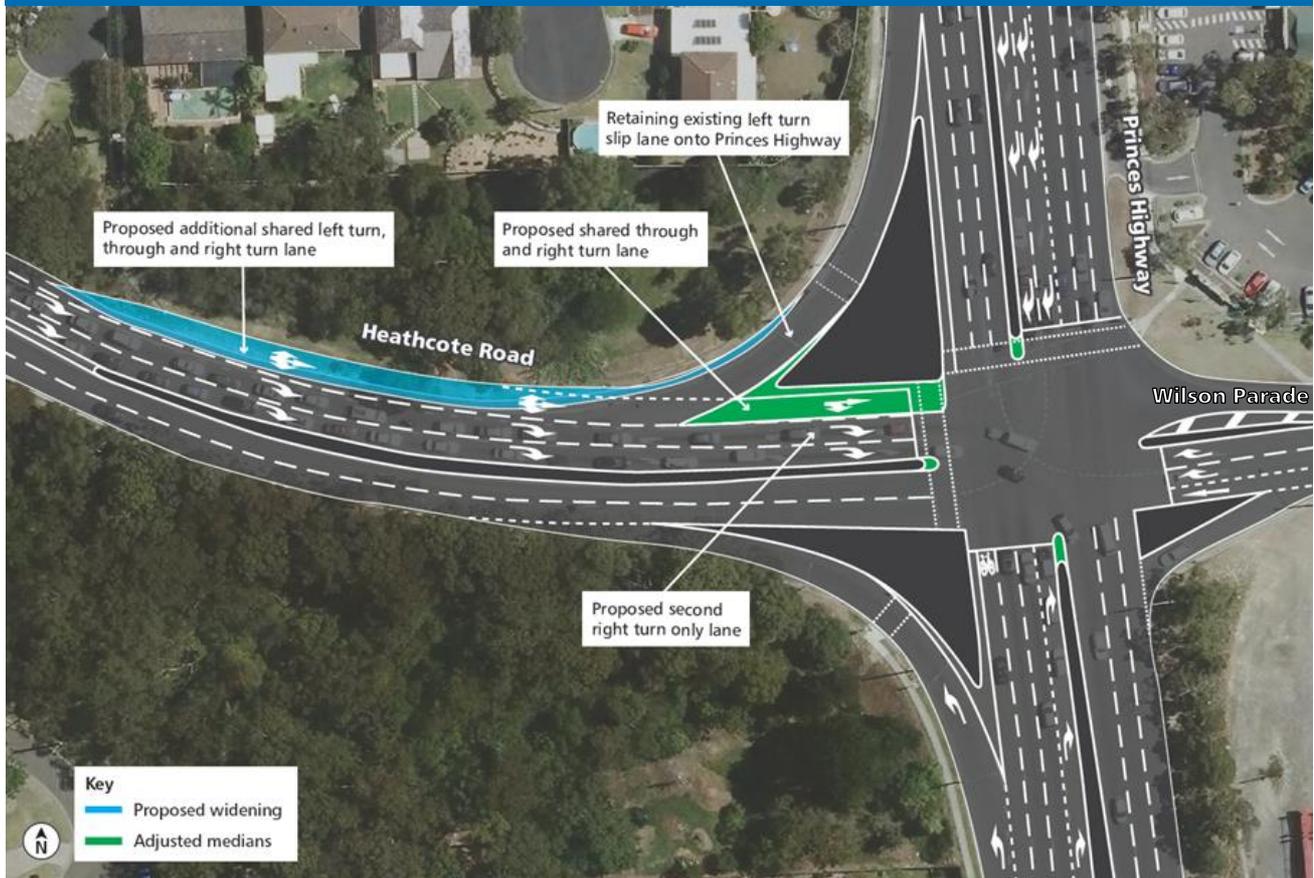

We will notify you again before work starts to invite feedback on the night work construction schedule and will continue to update you as the project progresses.
